There was another case of wife-beating reported in the city last evening. One Ross is said to have choked his wife and otherwise maltreated her. And still there is no whipping-post law in Missouri.

BEN BUTLER always assumes that he is a political statesman. His plan for reducing the surplus is to divide it up among the Union and confederate soldiers. Ben may often be reasonable, but he has the genius to be always entertaining. He may never be stale but he might be dangerous as a leader. He is generally to be avoided.

The obituary poet of Mr. CHILDREN'S Political Ledger is occasionally disposed to be serious and to take an interest in a real new living. In the death notices of a recent issue of that paper may be found this little hortatory gem:

Born in time, made no delay.

In my youth, was called away;

Therefore, be careful how you live.

CLAY COUNTY, this state, is to vote on the local option issue on the 13th of October, the court having ordered an election for that time. So far as temperance is concerned Clay is one of the exemplary countenances of the state. It has never been over-run by gin mills, and the friends of local option confidently expect to carry the day. The people will have an opportunity to make a choice.

A NEW industry has been opened up for Kansas which promises to be successful. The sorghum workers at Fort Scott have tried the experiment of making sugar from sorghum cane and find that a good article of sugar can be made at a profit. Where there is a profit in a business there is likely to be a growth. Kansas may be able to make her own sugar, and thus be independent of the product in other lands.

THE MILITIA SPIRIT is in the people, although it was entirely absent in the last Legislature in this state. Two companies will probably organize in this city, if possible they should do so before the fall festivities begin. Military companies are always very convenient about a city in case of riots or other disturbances. They also help mightily to decorate civic occasions when an imposing parade is demanded.

There is a rumor that a certain newspaper of this country sent a reporter to Europe whose duty it should be to follow Mr. BLAINE during his sojourn abroad and make reports only of his mistakes and blunders. Such a mission is contemptible and such an espionage is disgraceful. It is not the right kind of journalism that will engage in this sleuth-hound manner of seeking opportunities for traducing the character of public men. Reputation should be protected from these base efforts to destroy it.

KING WILLIAM will meet the Czar on the 13th of this month. That little Bulgarian affair will be discussed by the crowded heads. In the meantime Prince FERNAND will continue to perform the functions of a king. He is a young man who gives evidence of having considerable enterprise and pluck. But of course his kingship is at the mercy of the allied powers, and he can only continue to reign by virtue of their sanction. Russia and Prussia may decide whether FERNAND is to remain or be deposed as was ALEXANDER.

OLD OBSERVER.

A VERDICT of guilty has been rendered against each of the Bald Knobbers tried in the Federal court at Jefferson City. The verdict will meet public approval. One very effective way of making crime odious is to punish the criminals. If Missouri had acted upon this policy long ago the state would have had fewer criminals, and consequently less crime. Wrong doing grows where it is not checked by law. Efforts to commute the sentence of the Bald Knobbers should not be entertained. There is no pretense that they are not guilty of the crimes charged against them. As there was no plea of insanity in the case and the guilt was clearly established, why then should the not guilty be inflicted?

THIS COUNTRY will now have the privilege of entertaining for the time the rising English author, Mr. ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON. The gentleman arrived in New York city last night and will tarry in the United States for some time. The reading and theater-going people are under obligations to him for the "Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." The general reader is indebted to him for a number of entertaining volumes. Especially should the children, old and young, be thankful to him for that charming volume entitled "A Child's Garden of Verses." There is many a "gleam of happiness" in these verses with which to delight the young. Mr. STEVENSON should be made welcome.

A DISPATCH from Washington is to the effect that President CLEVELAND, Speaker CARLISLE, and Representative RANDALL have been in conference touching the tariff. They are represented as having agreed upon a tariff bill which would reduce the custom duties, make large additions to the free list and abolish the tobacco and snuff-brandy tax. The conference was not final but the foregoing is given as an outline of the measure agreed upon. The Democrats had promised to reform the tariff and take such measure as would reduce the surplus revenue. The leaders of the party evidently feel under obligation to make an effort to redeem the promises made at Chicago when Mr. CLEVELAND was nominated. The President is at all times shown a willingness to redeem the pledges of his party made concerning the reformation of the revenue.

SHAKESPEARE OR BACON—which one wrote the master plays of the world? This is the question with which the literary world is now vexing itself. The New York World and Sun are carrying on an acrimonious warfare on the subject. The World refers to "the so-called Bard of Avon," and the Sun intimates that DONALD'S knowledge of the authorship of the plays is no better than his knowledge of geology, and that on this point Professor WINCHELL had shown his information to be of an imaginary character. On the other hand the World publishes an interview with BEN BUTLER, who is a Baconian, to show that DONNELLY is not a fraud, that his knowledge of his subject is profound and that his investigation is thorough. The question of the authorship will be pending for many years, and it may be forever. In the meantime the plays are here and speak for themselves. They represent supremacy in all literature, whether ancient or modern. There is more benefit in reading the plays than in being wise concerning the disputed question of their authorship.

EXTEND THE LIMITS.

If the city limits were extended to the Blue at the east and to Brush creek at the south the annexed territory would be more than twelve thousand acres. Moderately estimated, at an average assessed value of $2,000 an acre, the taxable value of the property would be twenty-four million dollars. This would increase the city's income two hundred and forty thousand dollars a year, or nearly a quarter of a million.

The land within the proposed new limits derives its great value solely from the fact that it is within the golden circle of Kansas City's prosperity. It possesses no abstract value except as farm land, but its conditional value is enormous. The city created the wealth and the wealth should pay tribute to the power that made it.

Besides, precedent and comparison prove that the city limits are too contracted, and the equitable adjustment of land values requires that the boundaries shall be placed at the proper distance from the heart of the city.

NOTES FROM NATURE.

I have these gentle friends of the wood. The simon-pure silkworms say, Who fills in their home and there two without the day, Fill in their home and note the sounds.

The chattering squirrel, with mimes of red and tan, The wood-pecker, beating on his roost; To donor coverts where no eye can see.

And often, when beneath the silver moon, Flap and still the barking river lies, The far-off wail of some belated lone.

While swaying pines, with soft Bolton tones, Ever join in a symphony.

Paul H. Lear.

It is to a man a dog with a tail, to a kind enough to state in the column of your paper whether the "a" in borealis is pronounced long or short.

WINTER—What is the date of the next market parade? Will the exposition open September 15? The Frieze of Palms and tradesmen are to be present. The managers say the exposition will open at that time for the opening.

TO-MORROW: warmer, fair weather; light to fresh southerly winds, increasing in force during Friday.

Our Mrs. Dexter has returned after five weeks' sojourn at Newport, Saratoga, Long Branch and New York City, and will be pleased to see her friends.

Mrs. A. J. Miles has been employed as her assistant and will be happy to see any of her old friends and customers.

Ribbons! Ribbons!!

To-morrow and Saturday we are going to sell 1,515 pieces of All-Silk Colored Gros Grain Ribbons at exactly Half Price and Less.

They are now on display and prove to be excellent values.

Silk importers tell us there's bound to be an advance in prices; that raw silk is worth more to-day than it was in April, when we placed our heaviest orders.

This may all be, but we shall go right on and make this sale September 17, based on the INSTANT CASH cost to us.

We have an abundance of Silks. Our monthly inventory of stocks showed September 1 $108,868 worth of Silks and Velvets in stock and in the warehouse.

We are daily preparing for this sale, marking the Silks for this special sale as we get to them at prices as close to the net cash cost to us as we can afford. True, the profit on each yard won't be much, but the tons of Silks that we expect to sell will bring us a goodly return.

The latest news we have of Silks is that an elegant assortment of Rhadames and Tricotines are on their way from New York to us. These classes of Silks are held in good favor through the east.

We secured them from one of the largest importers in New York city. They are worth every bit of $2 yard. Watch the papers for our price.

When you want to buy Morley's English Cotton Hose be sure to see that "I. and R. Morley" is stamped on every pair. None genuine without it.

Hundreds of pairs have already been sold at 50c, as represented, and you will do well to secure all you are likely to want before Christmas in this special sale.

Children's, 43c a pair, sizes 5 to 6 1/2; 53c a pair, sizes 7 to 8 1/2c; worth one-third more.

The demand for the Ladie's Hose with spliced foot, at 15c a pair continues unabated. No more this season at the price after these are sold.

Cheap Ruchings for Friday and Saturday, 10c and 25c a yard.

The last display of Cloaks and Dresses we put in our front show windows has brought a great many inquiring patrons into the Suit departments. We expected this.

Foreseeing the demand for Children's Cloaks and Dresses on the opening of school, we selected a good line of them, neat appearing and serviceable, that were bought very cheap and will be sold the same way.

We will put them on sale Saturday. There are:

125 MEDIUM - WEIGHT CLOAKS in ages from 4 to 10 years.

None of them are worth less than $6.50; many worth as much as $10.

Our price for any size will be $4.95.

There will also be 40 Dresses worth from $5 to $8, in any size up to 10 years, that will be sold at the uniform price of $3.75.

You can see some of them in the display windows now and the others on the Sale Counter of the Cloak and Suit Department Saturday.
